

Urge The Development Of A Western Outlet For Grain Shipments

Ottawa.—John M. Irvine, head of the Edmonton Board of Trade delegation, appeared before the special House Committee on agriculture to urge development of the western outlet for western grain. This would be a benefit, he said, to agriculture over all Canada. The opening of a new all-year route would benefit agriculture eastward of Alberta and grain from that province would be saved seven cents a bushel by going via Panama Canal instead of by the Atlantic seaboard. The removal of differential against westbound freight would add another six cents to the saving.

Even at present there was an advantage as far as the cost of shipping was concerned. Irvine declared there was a greater grade eastward from Edmonton than from Edmonton to the Pacific coast over the Canadian National. He said he could see no physical reason for the differential on the C.N.R.

The difference of seven cents per bushel would have added to per cent. to the income of Alberta farmers last year.

The second outlet was imperative even if it did not increase the price of wheat to the farmers, because it would check the annual congestion of the eastbound route and provide competition between two routes.

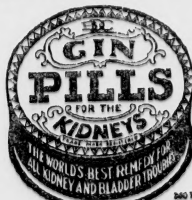

Mr. Irvine said he was against a compulsory wheat board. He did believe, however, that the best should be made of the opportunities to hand. One hundred million bushels of wheat could have been economically moved to Liverpool by the Pacific route last year.

To develop the westbound route, interior elevator facilities were necessary. Farmers could not ship wheat on consignment to Vancouver where there was no ready demand. Reservoirs were necessary at a point where wheat could be brought up to export grade, and where it would be available for sale either to Canadian buyers or for shipment to either overseas. A certain amount of wheat was below export standards and wheat of this character shipped to Vancouver was liable to ten cents per bushel surcharge, which was the difference between export and domestic grain rates.

Edmonton was a logical centre for the location of public terminal elevators such as were provided by the Federal Government at Winnipeg, Moose Jaw, Saskatoon and Calgary. Edmonton asked the same facilities as had been provided at Calgary. Edmonton was now the chief gathering point on shipment of wheat to Vancouver.

Bandits Resume Operations

Bank at Dollard, Sask., Is Robbed and $6,800 in Cash Taken

Shamovon, Sask.—The bandits who raided the Bank of Montreal branch at Dollard, eight miles west of here, found the vaulted ledger keeper as he lay in his bedroom, shattered glass with three blades of auto glitter and looted the vault of $6,800 in cash and $1,000 in securities, made a complete getaway.

The provincial police have scoured all trails leading to the bandits and checked up all the occupants of all suspicious cars without success.

Five men are known to have participated in the raid, but it is believed a sixth remained in the auto in which they escaped. Two men, masked with red handkerchiefs and armed with revolvers, started the actual looting, while three other members of the gang, armed with rifles, were seen standing on guard.

The bank strong box and the ledger of the main office of the bank was completely wrecked by the three blasts of "soup." The final was so powerful that a huge piece of the front wall of the safe was hurled through the wall of the building across a vacant lot and embedded itself in the wall of a nearby store.

Undertake to Re-write Bible

Scientific, Ethical and Philosophical Theories to be Employed

New York.—Present-day scientific, ethical and philosophical theories will be employed in re-writing the Bible in the light of the twentieth century," it was announced by the Tison Lectureship Foundation, Inc., organized at a meeting of clergy, scholars and laymen in the library of J. P. Morgan's house.

A statement issued by the new organization declared the conception of the Bible as a single literary volume to be "an unfortunate inheritance from medieval Europe." The statement added: "The old order has passed away and with it much of traditional theology."

HUSBAND DIDN'T DARE LEAVE HER ALONE HEART WAS SO BAD

Those feelings of faintness, those dizzy spells, the all-gone sinking sensations which come on from time to time indicate a weakened condition of the heart and a disordered state of the nerves.

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

have no equal as a remedy to strengthen the heart, invigorate the nerves and build up the rundown system.

Mrs. C. Vanhorn, Extonville, Alta. writes:—About a year ago I had heart trouble. My husband didn't dare leave me alone and often had to stay up at night with me. I would just feel kind of faint and my heart would seem to stop beating. I would just faint away and it would sometimes be an hour before they could bring me back to life. Someone told me about Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I got three boxes; I took them and felt much better. I could do all my winter and now I never feel any such faintness. I surely do appreciate the good they have done for me."

Strong Bonds That Bind Canada to Great Britain

Toronto.—Sir Edward Krupp, who has just returned from a trip to Great Britain, stated that he had found a certain apprehension in the old land as to a movement of sentiment in Canada toward absorption by the United States.

This feeling arose through the discussion on the point of whether a Canadian minister should sign the recent fisheries treaty with the United States rather than have it signed by Sir Auckland Geddes, the British ambassador at Washington.

It will be remembered that Sir Auckland thought his signature sufficient, but Hon. Ernest Lapointe did the signing.

"I told the British people to whom I spoke that they need have no fear on that score," said Sir Edward.

"I told them that the two dominant races in Canada wanted the relations of Canada and the Empire to remain precisely as they are now—that there was no chance of lessening the bonds that bind Canada to Britain."

Cattle Sale in Saskatoon

Good Attendance Is Expected At Auction in June

Regina.—A number of buyers from outside points will probably attend the annual pure-bred cattle sale to be held at Saskatoon, June 5 and 6 under the auspices of the Saskatchewan Cattle Breeders' Association.

Seventy bulls will be judged the first day and put up for auction, including 15 Shorthorns, 10 Herefords, 10 Angus and five dairy bulls. On the second day Shorthorns, Herefords and Angus cows will be submitted.

It is anticipated that R. S. Hunter, chief of the Cattle Division of the Federal Department of Agriculture, will probably be a buyer. As the sale will be conducted after feeding has been completed, it is anticipated there will be a good attendance.

She Received Great Benefit From Them

THAT'S WHY NOVA SCOTIA LADY RECOMMENDS DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Mrs. Leo Gaudet Found Relief and Tells How Sufferers to Use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Sault Ste. Marie, N.S.—(Special).—The value of Dodd's Kidney Pills as a household remedy is shown by the following statement of Mrs. Leo Gaudet, a well known resident here.

"I suffered with kidney trouble," Mrs. Gaudet states. "I took Dodd's Kidney Pills and have received great benefit from them. I think they are very good."

What Mrs. Gaudet states is all that has ever been claimed for Dodd's Kidney Pills—that they are good for such kidneys. The need for good health lies through the kidneys. If they are kept strong and well, all the impurities are strained out of the blood, all they are weak and out of order the impurities stay in the blood and disease is the sure result. Dodd's Kidney Pills keep the kidneys in good condition to do their work in cleansing and purifying the blood.

Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills do not make sound, healthy kidneys.

Sentenced To Hang

Montreal, Sask.—Convicted of the murder of three persons, Victor Mason will execute his crime on the gallows at Regina July August 15. Heas of insanity and manslaughter failed at his trial here and after an absence from the court room of 22 minutes, the jury returned and announced that they had found the prisoner guilty of the murder of Jean Marie and Leonie Chouvalon at St. Mary's farm at Lemass, Sask., February 16, 1925.

Ottawa.—Notice of motion for a postponement of final revision of the Bank Act until next session, and extension of the charter of Canadian banks for one year was given by A. Speckman, Progressive member for Red Deer, in the committee on banking and commerce.

The reasons given by Mr. Speckman in the preamble of his motion, were that the scope of the investigation had been widened to include a general investigation of the banking, currency and control of credit, and a large amount of data had been submitted to the committee in this connection; also that the vital nature of the investigation had been becoming apparent and that the situation was recognized as serious; that it would be impossible for members to give adequate consideration before the end of the session to evidence submitted.

That rural credits were under consideration by the Agriculture Committee, which might make recommendation in this regard; that the War Finance Act was still in force and took precedence over the Bank Act in many particulars; that answers needed to questions submitted by the Progressives demanded careful consideration; that the proposed economic conference of the British Dominions would afford opportunity for discussing some of the wider features of banking; and finally, that the Canadian Council of Agriculture and the Legislatures of Manitoba and Alberta had petitioned for a postponement of the revision.

There was considerable discussion of the provision which states that the number of bank directors "shall be not less than five and the quorum thereof not less than three." The clause carried.

W. C. Good (Bram) had an amendment which provided that a director could not be elected without a majority of the votes of the shareholders. This was defeated.

Section 50 of the bill, which provides that no division of profits exceeding eight per cent. per annum shall be made, unless, after making the same, the bank has a reserve fund equal to 20 per cent. of its paid-up capital, was carried. This clause provides that directors, who knowingly incur in such division of profits shall be jointly and severally liable for the amount divided.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 6th.

One of Didsbury's plucky citizens asked, the other day: "Why is it that nearly every church that attends church likes to get in the end of a seat and hold onto it like a hot potato, and every person who gets a berth in that seat must squabble over them?" Well, we confess we do that sort of thing.
It is to get out quickly in case of fire. Our sinners are quite strongly convinced of fire, thence and bring stone that is burning us, and we can't tell just exactly when it is going to come. We want to be in a position to make a quick get-away.

After all there is a good deal in talk. Let's talk dull times and it is interesting, everybody talks dull times. Instead of muttering around it, let's all sit down and make over all things. If a customer does happen to drop into one of these "dull times" stores, he actually gets frightened out of one-half as much as he expects to buy, because things look bore. He catches the spirit of the store and resolves to hang on to all his money with a death grip, even if he has business plans to present on a second or coming short of goods to fill up the empty shelves. The biggest fear of hard times should be set down upon. It is doing more to kill business than anything else. Tell a man he is sick keep it up, and convince him eventually he is dead.

CANADIAN CATTLE IN BRITAIN

Prof. W. L. Carlyle, manager of the Prince of Wales ranch at High River, has returned from a trip to the Old Country, and has brought with him some high bred horses, cattle and sheep with which to stock the prince's ranch. Included in the first shipment, is Will Somers, one of the best known and most consistent winners on British racecourses of recent years.

Prof. Carlyle speaks encouragingly of the British market for Canadian stocker cattle, and says the British importer demands well-bred stock and advises Canadian breeders and ranchers to pay more attention to breeding what the British market requirements call for.

MILLION DOLLAR RAINS

Professor Carter, of the University of Alberta, figured that the weekend rains in Alberta passed the "million dollar rain" stage and put into the "twenty-five million dollar rain" class. The Vancouver district, with two and three fourths inches of rain on Sunday, the 20th, set the record for this year in the central part of the province.

Valley last season as against 288-116,764 feet in the 1921-1922 season.

Last season's grain shipments through the port of Montreal exceeded 182,600,000 bushels. Revenues reached $3,460,810 providing a surplus of $266,302.

Forest rangers of the Quebec and of covering fires on either side of sirable variety. In thirteen years this single head had multiplied to the extent that 1,500,000 acres were sown to it and showed an increased production of 5,000,000 bushels.

One of the largest timber sales that the Canadian Pacific Railway has made in several months has just been made on Vancouver Island. A group of Seattle lumbermen have acquired 12,000 acres of timber land at Horne Hill. The timber on this stand exceeds 200,000,000 feet.

Part of the plans for keeping the St. Lawrence open all winter submitted by Dimitry Jonavick, Roumanian engineer, to the Federal and Provincial Governments would call for the erection of a nine mile dam at the east end of Belle Isle strait, which would reverse the cold currents from the north entering the river.

The Bungalow Camps to be

"Yes," he continued, "I believe it is." "Somebody was here with face?" "The voice was a blend of attempted confidence with distressing doubt."

"My dear, I have pointed news out to you."

"With Gordon?" The question was almost a sob. "Who, father? Dorothy Burnett?"

Hein dropped into a chair, and gestured to her. The Senator placed his hands on her shoulders. She looked up at him, and then down at her hands. "You must be brave, my dear," he said. "I am sure it is Gordon."

"But why should they have come here, father—here of all places? Doesn't that seem very improbable to you?"

"For fear of arrest, I suppose. Their reason for coming here, you have just expressed, Helen, because it offered them the safest refuge at that time of night. In Crawling Water. The office has not been used at night since we were in it, and besides, Moran has been doubly busy with me at the hotel. But I don't say that was their real reason for coming here."

"The safe had been opened, and doubtless their chief motive was robbery."

"She sprang to her feet and stood facing him with flaming cheeks, grief still but animated by passionate indignation."

"Father, do you stand there and tell me that Gordon Wade has not only been untrue to me, but that he came here at night to steal from you, broke in here like a common thief?"

"He rose, bowed silently, and in her eyes shone a valuable ray of scorn. The Senator met her outraged glance with a look of surprise. "You mean that you are rich, Bill?"

"The younger man spoke slowly and emphatically. "Whatever comes out of here," he waved his hand toward the creek in the mountainous, "I decided on that long ago. Never mind asking me why."

"He looked at her with a steady gaze. "I have a right to know, my dear. I don't want to be a partner in law, if not in crime. Because you've stuck with me through all the lean years. That's reason enough."

"The old physician carefully emptied the dust back into the jar before he said anything."

"Have you gone clean crazy?" he finally demanded. "Get out of my sight like this. You're the maddest of a madmen!"

"You mean that you are rich, Bill?"

"He looked at her with a steady gaze. "I have a right to know, my dear. I don't want to be a partner in law, if not in crime. Because you've stuck with me through all the lean years. That's reason enough."

gravely as became a man in his position. He spoke with judicial gravity, which could leave no doubt of his own convictions, while conveying a sense of dignified restraint, tempered with regret.

"He not only did so, my dear, but he succeeded in securing with circumstances of the greatest value to us, which, if prematurely published, may work us incalculable harm and subject our motives to the most grievous misconceptions."

"She lifted her head with so fine a posture of pride that the Senator was thrilled by his own paternalism. Before him, in his child, he seemed to see the best of himself, purified and exalted."

"Then, if that is true, you may do with him what you will. I am through."

"He knew her too well to doubt that her remembrance of Wade had been torn from the very roots of her nature, but for all that, when she had turned, she was not above her moment of deep grief."

"My little girl, I know. I know!" Putting his arms around her, he kissed her while she wept on his shoulder. "But isn't it better to find out these things now, before they are too late, than to have a chance to really wreck your happiness?"

"Of course," she dried her eyes and managed to smile a little. "I'll write to Maxwell today and tell him that I'll marry him. That will please mother."

"He pleased the Senator, too, for it meant that no matter what happened to him, the women of his family would be provided for. He knew that young Frayne had turned from his purpose by any misfortune that might occur to Helen's father."

CHAPTER XIV.

A Dastard's Blow

At about the time when Rexhall was fleeing Moran from his bonds, Wade and Santry, with rifles slung across their backs, were traversing the banks of Fish Creek. In the rocky canyon, which they finally reached, the placid little stream hurried into a swirling torrent, which rushed between the steep banks and the huge, water-worn boulders, with fury uncontrolled.

"Neither of the cattle men greatly feared the coming of a second posse, at least immediately, but for the sake of prudence, they went armed and kept a careful watch. Wade mounted guard while Santry, who in his young days had prospected in California, squatted over a sandy, rock-strewn knoll, and, with a few uncontrolled yells, gave glance at the fine, yellow residue in the bottom of the tin he held."

"Wade drew a long breath. "It's good! It's true, then?"

"You betcher, and it's the richest tin I ever met up with. No wonder Moran has been willing to do murder to get a hold of this land. You're a rich man, boy, millionaire, I reckon."

"You mean that you are rich, Bill?"

"He looked at her with a steady gaze. "I have a right to know, my dear. I don't want to be a partner in law, if not in crime. Because you've stuck with me through all the lean years. That's reason enough."

"The old physician carefully emptied the dust back into the jar before he said anything."

"Have you gone clean crazy?" he finally demanded. "Get out of my sight like this. You're the maddest of a madmen!"

"You mean that you are rich, Bill?"

"He looked at her with a steady gaze. "I have a right to know, my dear. I don't want to be a partner in law, if not in crime. Because you've stuck with me through all the lean years. That's reason enough."

ous as a boy. But on the way back to the ranch-house he became serious. "Say, ain't the bulk of that lode on that rocky-aree-ree that you took up as a flimbley thing?" he asked.

"Yes," Wade answered. "That is, I think so. We can run over the lines this afternoon and make sure."

"If reckon we'd better make sure, and if it is, you'd have to lay low until you get your deed. You know about rights might be hard to claim now that there's mineral in the ground. Moran'll most likely keep the lode shut for reasons of his own, and he may not know about your not having proved up yet, but some other paper might get wise."

"I don't think any one around here would contest my right to the land, Bill," Wade replied thoughtfully. "Still, as you say, we'd better be careful. The gold will keep. We haven't heard the last of Moran and his crowd yet, not by a jugful!"

"He chuckled grimly. "I wonder if any body's cut him some yet."

"I reckon they have, boy. He'll keep monkeying around this territory until he gets up with some better idea, with a bad temper and a quick gun hand, who'd make him good the same way we make make good bulls."

"Although they were now in sight of the house and the men longing about it for the noon-day meal, Santry had not relaxed his caution and his eyes had picked out two moving dots in the distance, which presently developed into galloping horses. He smiled instantly."

"Can't be nobody looking for trouble," he observed, and presently his eyes twinkled. "Told a good look, boy. I reckon you know one or em, anyhow."

"The horses came on rapidly, until upon the foremost of them Wade could see the fluttering skirt of a woman, while the lead and rider appeared as belonging to Len Towlesbridge even before he could clearly make out the rider."

"The cook well have company to dinner," Wade called to Santry as he saw a horseman riding along the creek, and he called to him to meet the newcomers."

"The men, Len Towlesbridge, when he saw him, rode toward them, drew his horse down to a walk, and so was directly in the rear when Dorothy and Wade met."

"Mighty glad to see you," he greeted her, "but that goes without saying."

"Thanks," she responded, hoping that he would attribute the heightened color of her cheeks to the exertion of the ride. "We thought we'd ride out to see how you were getting along."

"Despite her blush, that had come at the recollection of his kiss the night before, she still looked him straight in the eyes, but with a sweet humility, an attitude of surrender, which he understood, and which he returned."

"There was nothing bold about her look, but an engaging womanliness, which would have appealed to any decent man, even while it stirred his pulse."

"She wore a wide, light hat, from beneath the brim of which her hair, disheveled, shaken out of its moorings by the jolting of her gallop. A flannel blouse, which was now becoming, and a divided skirt completed a sensible costume, which seemed to Wade more attractive than any he had ever seen in the East. She rode with the straight stiffness of the cut of the country, but with a grace which was the grace of a born horsewoman."

"What's happened to Moran?" he asked, waving his hat to Dorothy as she rode toward them.

"He's out and around again. I saw him this morning. He was a awful sight. You must keep your eyes open, Gordon, really you must. He'll be more likely than ever now."

"Oh, I guess we've clipped his claws for a while," he said lightly, unwilling that she should be anxious for the safety, sweet though he found her sympathy to be. "Hello, Len!"

"They shook hands, the firm handshake of strong men, and then all three rode on together to the house."

"After dinner, the pliancy of which meant nothing to such appetites as their outdoor living had aroused, they sat on the porch, the men over their cigarettes and Dorothy quite content in the contemplation of the sweetness which her heart had found."

"How are things going on your place, Len?" he began. "I've heard that it's a pretty good one."

"Buddy, Gordon. That's one reason I rode over to see you. Have you heard about the fight on my range?"

A Feed Test
Experiment With Corn and Sunflower Silage For Growing Heifers
Among other experiments with cattle at the Dominion Experimental Farm, Brandon, Man., one was conducted to ascertain the relative value of corn and sunflower silage as a feed for growing heifers. Fourteen heifers were divided into two equal lots. At the end of the first four weeks, the heifers fed sunflower silage with their ration were given corn silage, and the lot having been given corn silage were given sunflower silage. It was noted that when this change was made the heifers fed sunflower silage took more readily to the corn silage than the corn lot did to the sunflower silage. Both lots when on sunflowers failed to consume all roughage. In the first period of four weeks, the heifers on corn silage made an average daily gain of 31 pounds over those on sunflower silage, and in the second period of these weeks, the lot on corn silage made an average of 28 pounds gain over the lot on sunflower silage. A similar test on the Brandon Farm the previous year, over a period of twelve weeks, gave an average increased daily gain of 46 pounds for corn over sunflower silage.

Canadian Mothers Have Healthy Children

WHY? READ THIS!

London, Ont.—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was so beneficial to me that I feel it my duty to set this statement for publication, so that it may be of help to other young mothers. During my last expectant period I felt just miserable, fatigued, so that I could not retain my food, my back ached and I just seemed to ache and pain all over. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription put me in perfect physical condition. I was able to eat my meals without that awful sick feeling and I kept well and strong right up to the last. My baby seemed to be beautiful, too—was as strong and healthy as a baby could be. I think so much of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as a tonic to nature in motherhood that I would not go to my neighborhood drug store at once and obtain this Prescription of Doctor Pierce's, in bottles or single leaflets, to send to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory, Montreal, Ont., for trial package labels.

Doctor in England Cares for 1,500 Different Varieties

The largest collection of microbes in the world is housed in the latter Institute, Chelsea Bridge, where Dr. St. John Franklin, across them with the care in a number for her children. He has 1,500 different varieties growing in little glass tubes. They are sent all over the world to scientific investigators, and during the past year 200 new species have been added to the collection.

To one species, the bacillus tularemiae, so dangerous that its culture had to be discontinued—the curator, Dr. Brooks, with his assistant, Miss K. Rhodes, and Dr. Schultz all fell victims recently. The disease is unknown in this country, but in the United States all laboratory workers who tried to cultivate the microbes suffered from the disease of tularemia, which is very protracted, but rarely fatal to man. It is a form of blood poisoning due to multiplication of the tularemia microbes in the blood.

NERVOUS TORTURES

Irritation by Day and Sleeplessness at Night the Result

There is no torture more intolerable than nervousness. The sufferer starts at every noise, is shaky and depressed. The least thing produces a feeling of irritation and nights are often sleepless. Often although in a completely exhausted condition, the patient is unable to sit or lie still. The nerves are in this sad condition because they are being starved by poor water, blood and to restore them to normal condition the blood must be made rich, red and pure. For this purpose no other medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They act directly upon the blood; they bring it to normal condition, necessary to enrich and purify it, thus bringing new health and strength to run-down, nerve-worn people. There is no doubt about this; blood must be restored to the blood, improving, nerve-restoring qualities of these pills, among these is Mrs. Wilkes' statement, New York, N.Y., who says: "I was badly run down and my nerves were in a terrible condition. I could start at the least sound and often faint away. I could not sleep at night, and only those who have been in a similar condition can tell what I suffered. At my mother's request I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after taking them for several months I am surprised at my present condition of good health. My nerves are as sound as ever. I can sleep well and eat well, and have no more fainting spells. I can only say that I cannot praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills too much for what they have done for me."

Write for these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 25 cents a box from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Double Freight On Weed Seed

Where the Farmer Loses at Every Point of the Game

During the winter, it is claimed, Alberta farmers brought in from P. W. Williams nearly sixteen million pounds of screenings, say 250 carloads, to use as feed for stock. That could hardly be a more striking illustration of the loss that is involved in shipping uncleaned grain out of the province and bringing back the refuse from the distant elevators. It is a safe estimate that as many carloads of screenings were shipped from Alberta to P. W. Williams—mixed with the marketable grains—as were imported from that point. The farmer paid for the eastward haul of this feed-stuff clear across the prairies in the decade that was charged against him because his grain was not cleaned. He paid for the return haul when he later on brought back a carload of screenings from his own or some other farmer's grain, and to add to the screenings a price sufficient to cover the cost of cleaning the grain. That is to say; the farmer first gave away the weed seed and inferior kernels in the grain that he delivered to the local elevator, paid the railways to haul them to P. W. Williams and back again, and paid the terminal elevators for them. That looks like losing money at about every possible point of the game. If Alberta grain were cleaned in Alberta (the farmers of the province would cure the refuse at the cost of the elevator charges, and would be in pocket the freight charges to P. W. Williams and back. Incidentally, we would in that case be keeping Alberta weed seeds at home, instead of shipping them abroad and importing carloads of other—and perhaps worse—weed seeds from Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Mrs. Matthews Pays High Tribute To Tante For Ending Sickness Trouble

"I am so thankful for the world of benefits I have received from the Tante treatment I feel compelled to tell my body in Toronto about it," writes Mrs. Ellen Matthews, 101 1/2 Ave., Toronto, Ontario.

"I suffered terribly with stomach trouble and a run-down condition that I feared nervous collapse. My appetite (the almost deserted me) and a little I did manage to eat digested with me, and I bloated with gas till my heart palpitated and I was dreadfully short of breath. I couldn't get a good night's sleep and was so worn I couldn't even do my errands to the store."

"I heard so much praise of Tante I finally bought a bottle, and it was worth its weight in gold. Six bottles have made me perfectly well, without a sign of the old troubles I had suffered with for seven years, and my weight has been increased, too. I consider it a duty to recommend 'Tante'."

Tante is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37-million bottles sold.

Synthetic Coal

High Grade Anthracite is Produced From Stone Quarries

German science, it is reported, has actually succeeded in manufacturing synthetic coal. The achievement is credited to a Munich pharmacist, Prueckner by name, who is reported to have produced a high grade anthracite from stone quarries. The production of synthetic coal equal in every respect to anthracite is said to have been established beyond doubt by a number of official practical tests. The process of making synthetic coal is simple, according to the inventor of the method, who is quoted as saying that two different kinds of soft stone are crushed and ground into fine sand and mixed with certain chemicals.

AN APPRECIATION

Calgary, Alta., June 6th.
Didsbury Pioneer,

Dear Sir:—We desire to express through the columns of your paper our very keen appreciation of the excellent service rendered by the fire department of Didsbury upon the occasion of our elevator being partially destroyed by fire. We are informed that but for their very prompt and efficient service afforded by the heroic co-operation of townspeople and farmers alike our entire property would undoubtedly have gone up in flames and we take this means to convey our thanks to all those who offered help unstintingly.

Yours truly,
United Grain Growers Ltd.
